INTRODUCTION AND REFERENCE OF RESOLUTIONS

Read and referred:

Assembly Resolution 29

Relating to the creation of a special committee on legal services for the poor.

Whereas, there are various legal aid programs for the poor in effect in Wisconsin, including JUDICARE, the legal aid society, legal services for the poor, Voluntary defender program, public Defender Programs, Appointed Counsel for indigent dependents; and

Whereas, many of these programs are financed by federal, state and county monies, resulting in considerable governmental expenditure; and

Whereas, some of these programs are duplicating and overlapping; and

JOURNAL OF THE ASSEMBLY [July 20, 1971]

Whereas, considerable criticism has been leveled at certain of these programs by clients, attorneys, news media, judges, administrators and public officials; and

Whereas, both state and county legislative bodies, as well as congress, have studied alternative legal aid programs for civil and criminal litigants in order to find the plan most economical, efficient and fair; and

Whereas, the legal service programs were meant to promote justice by making legal aid available to persons who normally could not obtain such aid for lack of financial resources, utilizing the practicing bar to the fullest extent; and

Whereas, such equality of legal services will underscore one of the founding ideals of this nation—that of equality under law; now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the assembly, that an interim study committee known as the special committee on legal services for the poor be created, consisting of seven members, of whom four shall be chosen from the predominant party and three from the second most dominant party, to be chosen by the speaker; and, be it further

Resolved, that this special committee shall conduct hearings, study present plans, study complaints, criticisms and suggestions about the existing programs, utilizing the legislative council for staff and secretarial assistance; and, be it further

Resolved, that this special committee report its findings and recommended legislation to the 1971 legislature.
